Historical Happenings

January 18 Martha's Vineyard, Massachusetts
The passenger ship City of Columbus ran aground early this morning off Martha's Vineyard, drowning at least 103 in freezing waters.

March 3 Washington, D.C.
Supreme Court rules that Congress has authority to print greenbacks, even in peacetime.

March 6 Washington, D.C.
Some 100 suffragist, led by Susan B. Anthony, present President Arthur with demand that he voice public support for female suffrage.

May 10 New York City
The three-term "Cyclone Assemblyman" Theodore Roosevelt, a pugnacious 25 year old legislator known for his relentless attacks on government corruption and machine politics, will not seek re-election this fall. Roosevelt, who recently lost both his wife and mother on the same day, plans to retire from politics and hunt buffalo in the Dakotas.

July 26 Cleveland, Ohio
Edward M. Bentley and Walter H. Knight of the East Cleveland Street Railway discovered how to safely transfer electricity to streetcars. Today their line, the first in the nation, opened. Self-propelled cars ferried riders with power from underground, electrified third rail.

October 6 Newport, Rhode Island
Naval War College founded.

Worcester, Massachusetts - The Traveling Lunch Wagon
An innovation in eating for the workingman has appeared on the street of Worcester, Massachusetts, where an entrepreneur named Sam Jones has taken the idea of the lunch wagon – pioneered in 1872 in Providence Rhode Island – and provided stools inside so that customers do not have to eat standing. Because it is moveable, Jones can set up pretty much wherever he wishes, bringing the dining room to customers, rather than the other way around.

Rochester, New York - Eastman develops cheap, easy-to-use film
George Eastman has invented a process to coat flexible rolls of film with photographic emulsion. This type of film is inexpensive, easy to insert and remove from the camera and simple to develop once the pictures has been snapped, thereby making the art of photography accessible to everyone.

STRANGE BUT TRUE.—Several weeks ago several hearings were held to consider how the east end of Cottage street could be fixed for the greater safety of the travelling public. All things considered it seemed the best plan to have a curbing put up on the north west corner. Unless we are mistaken no official report has been made and it is certain that the corner in question has not been improved. In the meantime, however, the opposite corner has received a curbed and concreted side walk, without any petitions or any hearings. Such is life "In the fast growing metropolis of Norfolk county."

It seems, even in 1884 as today, Franklin was a
